
Arranged marriages

Marrying for love is a relatively new concept. For many centuries, matchmaking and arranging marriages for their children was the parents' privilege. In many societies worldwide, arranged marriages are still common. There are different types of arranged marriages: forced marriages, where bride and groom have no say in the matter due to social conventions; child marriages (also called early marriages), where at least one of the two people is not of adult age; and pragmatic marriages, where the partners have agreed to the pairing a matchmaker or parent has chosen.
